Introduction

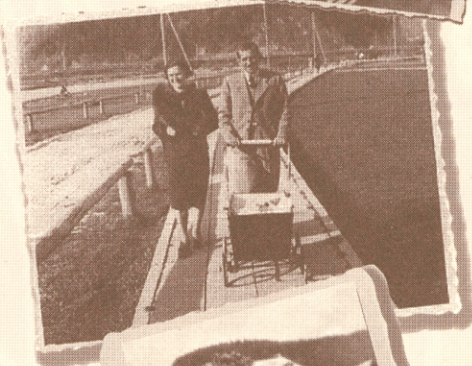

Jacqueline Berke . . . . . 10

"We are awed by the richness of the resources we are helping to mine."

Writing a Holocaust Moment

Robert Ready . . . . . 11

"There is such a thing as written memory.
It differs from spoken memory,
the kind that responds to being asked to talk about what happened.
Written memory...works through the hands and fingers of the writer.
It is as unique as the penmanship or the hasty scrawl of the person doing it."
